All Souls is a Welcoming Congregation.

FROM THE MINISTER

Dear Souls of All Souls

I very much want to extend my appreciation for the many opportunities you've given me as well as the trust you have put in me for all these years. For any disappointments along the way I can only offer my assurance that I am always working to get better both at being a minister and at being a human being.

These days focusing on the failures of once trusted structures or divisions in our city, the nation's politics and on most key issues may be an almost natural thing to do—particularly given the way media and consequently conversations with friends encourage us that direction. Of course, we need to pay attention somehow to remain engaged and responsible—prepared to speak truth to power and stand up for what is just and compassionate. Given all of that, I would like to remind us to notice all the once hidden falsehoods, dirty-dealings, and such that are coming to light. The truth will out. As it does, there will be many changes. Status quo will no longer be an acceptable standard. This is true of all sorts of systems and institutions including churches. Things going along as they always have won't continue. In all walks of life people are actively re-visioning what societal structures might look like and how they ought better to function.

Our congregation has been swimming upstream for 30 years. In a heavily conservative region of the country, hours away from our nearest Unitarian Universalist neighbors, and given several major obstacles to clear and recover from I think we have done a truly amazing job! We should absolutely celebrate with honors the courage, the effort, heart, soul, and resources that have gone into sustaining our place in the Shreveport community for all these years! Our presence has made a marked difference! To remain something worthwhile in the city we need to take this season of change as a great opportunity to reevaluate what we want our church to be—why we have chosen to be a part of it in the first place, what that means, what new shapes and directions we imagine it taking from here.

As this particular year draws to a close, I invite you to look back at the causes we have supported, the organizations we have worked with and whose work we have facilitated. Look at the number of public human rights events that have worn our faces. Look at how many of us completed courses that forged new relationships across demographics and fostered greater understanding. Look at all of the ways we have grown and had an impact. Be proud of yourselves and then let's get busy dreaming.

I wish every single one of you and your families ample blessings with peace, joy, and ease throughout this holiday season.

I love you all!!!

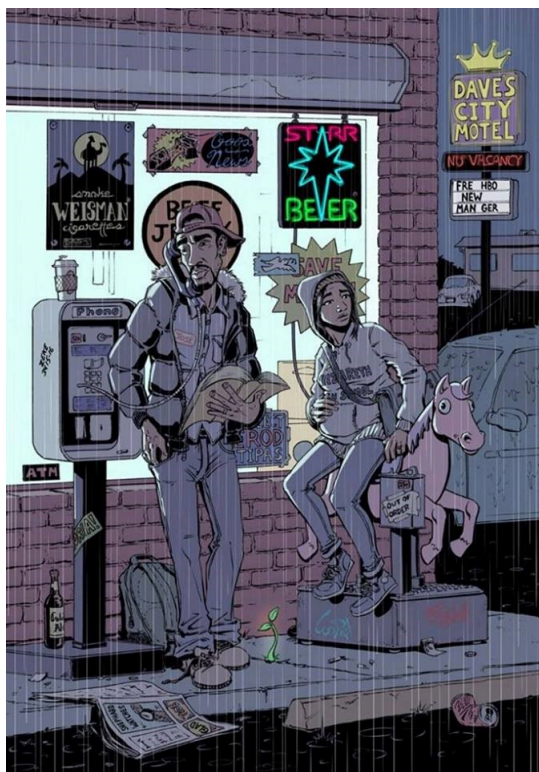

Yours in ever-evolving faith,
Barbara

What is Christmas if We Don't Welcome the Stranger?

You're looking at one of my favorite images of Christmas, created by Haven Kimmel and shared widely online for several years now. At first glance, it is just a young couple, a young man and his pregnant wife, down on their luck, trying to catch a break. And yet, looking even a little closer reveals so many details to let you in on the story, if you weren't there already. You might notice the Star, and then the "No Vacancy" sign on the "Dave's City Motel," Looking a little more closely, you might notice they have a "New Man ger." Keep looking and you will find multiple such discoveries, small and large, but as I'm sure you already realize, this is more than just a clever modern re-framing of an ancient story. On the contrary, the story itself is timeless, as current as it is ancient, and speaking a Capital T Truth that touches us on so many levels. This year, in particular, with desperate families being tear-gassed in our names at the border, and so many children still not reunited with their parents, we cannot help but see the irony of celebrating a story of a traveling couple who had no place to go to await the birth of their child, and then had to flee a genocide immediately after that child's birth in a stable.. More painful still is the knowledge that that same child would grow up to speak up, always, for "the least of these," and that many who claim to live in his name see nothing wrong with our treatment of families at the border. If we honor and celebrate that story as a birth of Light and Hope in the world, how are we not called to respond as the forces of Light and Hope when the story plays out in our own time?

These times remind me of the poem by Adrienne Rich:

"My heart is moved by all I cannot save:
so much has been destroyed
I have to cast my lot with those who age after age, perversely,
with no extraordinary power,
reconstitute the world."

The Christmas story calls down to us through the ages, reminding us that for the sake of this child, and all children, we must indeed cast our lot with those ordinary souls who will reconstitute the world. But the story calls to our spirits, too, We can read it as a story of the spirit of Love waiting to be born in all of us. That spirit, by whatever name we know it, sustains us for the very work in the world that is ours to do. I have always been mystified by the false choice some would impose onto churches: social justice or spiritual growth? Either one without the other is a path to depletion and burnout or pointless navel-gazing. A full life needs a balance of both.

Wishing you peace ,blessings, and balance for the holidays and throughout the New Year.

Three Chances to Give—Part I

Give a Child Some Holiday Cheer Through Community Support

This year, All Souls has received the names of 23 children from the Community Support Angel Tree. These are children who have been in the system of the Department of Children's and Family Services, but are living in their homes, either because they've been returned there or because DCFS is working with the family to keep them together. The list of names is up in the social hall, as well as online at <https://tinyurl.com/yb8smlxy>. Email Susan Caldwell at dre@allsoulsshreveport.org, or text or call her at 318-465-3427 to let her know which children's names you are claiming, and have the presents back by Sunday, December 16 if at all possible. You can bring them wrapped or unwrapped, just be sure the child's name is affixed securely to the package. If wrapping the gift, put the child's name on the "To" portion of the gift tag, but please leave the "From" line blank so that the parents may fill it out as they choose.

Festivus Marketplace

Festivus for ALL of US!

All Souls is delighted to host its second Festivus Marketplace! We are excited to offer our members the opportunity to shop with several local craftspeople and artists.

Join us in the social hall on Sunday, December 2 before and after the service!

Volunteer of the Month— Eric First

For the month of December, the Board has unanimously chosen our immediate past Board President, Eric First, as Volunteer of the Month. Eric has done just about everything a volunteer can do at All Souls. In addition to serving two terms as President of the Board, he now serves as Building and Grounds Chair, coordinating our second Saturday work days.

Eric has taught Religious Education at least one pillar every year since he joined the church, and often more than one. He started the Game Nights on the first and third Fridays, and he lends his baking and/or cooking talents to just about every event at the church. He is especially renowned for his baklava, as well as his spiced pecans and the world's best chocolate chip cookies.

For all of this time and talent that he gives so freely, and for the great humor and generous spirit with which he gives it, we are happy to award the Parking Spot of Honor to Eric First.

Commitment 2019: Give from the Heart

You know what All Souls means to you. Whether it is inspiring worship, religious education, or the opportunity to work with our partners for justice in the wider community, support the work of your heart with a pledge of support for 2019.

OWL for the Community Comprehensive Sex Education Coming to Our Community This Winter

After two parent orientation sessions, we are delighted to announce that the Our Whole Lives Class for Grades 10-12, or approximately ages 15-18, has made and will begin in January. We still have room for more youth in the class, so if you are a parent of a high school- youth in this age group and you are interested in enrolling them in the class, please talk to Susan or Steve Caldwell. (318-465-3427 or 318-465-3398, respectively).

Our Whole Lives (OWL) is a comprehensive sexuality education curriculum that is more thorough and more accurate than anything offered in our public schools.

OWL Offers:

- Accurate information presented in developmentally appropriate ways. OWL promotes abstinence as the wisest choice for young adolescents, and also acknowledges that they do make choices and that those choices should be fully and safely informed.
- Guiding values and principles
- Activities to help participants clarify values and improve decision-making skills
- A safe and supportive peer group
- Acceptance of diversity
- A social justice approach to inclusive sexuality education

OWL was created as a joint effort of the Unitarian Universalist Association and the United Church of Christ, but is designed to be taught in secular settings as well. Our OWL classes will be open to youth of all faiths and none.
